For me the wind was just the wind, until my reading and science teachers introduced me to this essay. Thanks to that, I realize that the wind can be used to help save our environment. I really didn't know so much about what a wind turbine was and how it works, so I did my research and actually, I found great information about Oklahoma and wind energy.

Let me summarize some of the interesting facts I found by doing some research about this amazing and actual topic. Even if the wind industry is something cool nowadays, due to the "green culture," I was amazed by the fact that since 200 B.C. the Persian's were already using this kind of energy. Looking and reading a little more from the History's view of this topic, I thought maybe wind turbines are in fashion now, but they have been in the human history for a while. So, we are not discovering the world here right now, but I am making the point of how it is possible, that for many years, human beings preferred to support other energy resources. The worst part of it is that these resources are not renewable. They are expensive and hurt our planet. (Global Wind)

"Go green" is a slogan that has become sensational in our community, but what does green culture mean? "Go green" implies that all of us need to care for
